~~For [unclear]~~
I remember when I told you to lay a blue egg. From then on we were pals destined to a life of hostility and fights. But most of the time we were friends. Have fun & never forget me (I don't know how you could?)
You are invited to my ordination (class of '92)
Love, Mike Pzasa

~~Who I'm glad I got to know Better,~~
You Never stop teasing me, But I'm glad you Do. Thanks for always giving me food to eat.
And being there when I needed you. And to A Girl who heads a lot of Pratic driving.
You are very special to me. I'll Love
you always,
Eric

We, the Memories Staff of 1983, sincerely and gratefully dedicate this yearbook to Sister DePaul for her 16 years of unselfish and loyal service to Bishop McCort. Her work has always been directed to the betterment of our education at Bishop McCort and for that we will always be indebted to her.

Editorial

Old news is an agent in curriculum of the McCort Mirror, but what readers don't take into consideration is the time taken to produce the school paper.

With a staff of eighteen members, the McCort Mirror is subject to an overload of work for the reporters, typists, editors and advisors. On the average about ten hours of free time from each staff member is given toward the production of each paper. And with the compiled schoolwork given here at McCort, in reality no student has that much free time to give away.

Also, in time of financial difficulties the school can give only so much money towards the printing of the paper. Lacking a printing press the Mirror staff must pay someone else to do its printing.

The printing is done by the Hartco Printing Co. in Carlisle, Pa. because of its reasonable rates. First the typed copies are sent to Hartco to get the paste-ups. On the average this takes four days. Then when the paste-ups are received the editors and advisor must arrange the paper within two days of afterschool work. Finally there is a five day waiting period for the final printing, which is also done by Hartco.

With the eleven days of processing plus time in reporting, writing, and typing, there should be little wonder left in the readers' minds why the Mirror puts out "old news."

Still there are solutions to these problems. If the paper was printed in Johnstown the time could be cut considerably, but of course, the budget is too tight for the high prices of a Johnstown printer.

Maybe there could be advertisements added to the Mirror to pay for the difference. With more emphasis towards features and editorials the news might not seem so old. But until there is more involvement the McCort Mirror will try its best to satisfy its readers as best possible.

Reporters Kris Sorchilla, Miss Sarosi Advisor, Sally Sadosky, Lynette Wright. Dan Schofield, Susan Sefcik, Robbie Kucharyk, Richard Gordon, Brydie McDowell

FOND MEMORIES

The Memories staff is already hard at work preparing for the 1983 yearbook. Editor, Sally Sadosky, ensures everyone that, "everything is running smoothly with the exception of some seniors who insist upon procrastinating about having their senior picture taken and ordered."

Since the arrival of the 1982 yearbook, many students have given suggestions to improve this year's edition. "All of these ideas are being taken into consideration so that hopefully everyone will be satisfied," said Kathleen Keelan, co-editor. The staff, too, has a number of innovating ideas that may surprise everyone.

According to Business Manager, Theresa Skovensky, the major problem is a lack of money. When the patron drive gets underway, she hopes that everyone will sell as many as they can. The more money that is raised the less the yearbook will cost.

There are thirty-five seniors on the staff each of which are assigned to a specific section. All students are under the supervision of Mrs. Theresa Shearer, who is also in charge of the printing department

Dear YE and MATT

The metaphysical dihedral plane, when cross-converted by the neurosis of humanity's inner sanctities of extissential, spiritual depravation, can sometimes be conceived as transcendental, but then again who cares.

Euhemeristically, Irving

Show me
your ways,
O Lord,
teach me
your paths;
guide me
in your truth...

PSALM 25:4-5

Robin to a shirtless
girl I met way back when. If in life you do anything just remember one thing you just can't have fun unless you lose your shirt

Ken
